

-I know this is different. I mean from anything we've ever done. And I know you might hate it. And think I'm completely crazy. But I won't care. Even if I get fired-- and I don't mean that disrespectfully, it's just that I've realized something. Who are these women? Does anyone know? I don't recognize any of them. I want to see my best friend's big sister. And the girls from the soccer team. My next door neighbor. Real women who are smart and pretty and happy to be who they are. These are the women to look up to.

Let's put life back into the magazine. And fun. And laughter and silliness. I think we all-- I think all of us want to feel something. And we've forgotten and turned our backs up. Because maybe we didn't realize how much we were leaving behind. We need to remember what used to be good. If we don't, we won't recognize it even if hits us between the eyes.